THE RESULT IN THE COUNTY.

Political post-mortems are always unprofitable, and the Herald does not propose to hold one now. It is sufficient to say that most of the Republican county ticket seems to have been defeated.

The ticket nominated by the Republican convention was one of the clean, est, ablest and best ever offered to the voters of Bernalillo county. The methods used in accomplishing its defeat were thoroughly characteristic of the men who opposed it, and were anything but creditable to the cause of the "good government" which they professed to represent, but we will not at this time discuss that feature of the election. It is sufficient to say that we believe that the people will have cause to bitterly regret what took place yesterday.

The Herald is entirely sincere, when it says that it hopes that the voters will merit the confidence which the people have reposed in them. We would be untrue to our own obligation to the people if we did not prefer to see a good, rather than a bad administration of the affairs of the county. In all things that they may do which look to the upbuilding and the advancement of the community these gentlemen will have the hearty support of this newspaper. In whatever they may do which seems to be adverse to the public good we shall without hesitancy and without fear register our opposition.

In common with all good citizens, we devoutly hope that Mr. Cullenwater's county commissioners will give us a businesslike and efficient administration of the county's affairs without further raising a tax rate already far too high; that Mr. Romero will be able to keep the prisoners safely incarcerated in the Bernalillo county jail in future; that Mr. Montoya will make as good a school superintendent as he has a real estate agent, and that all the other successful contestants for county office in the election of yesterday will prove themselves to be able, honest and efficient public servants.

And, also in common with every good citizen, we earnestly hope that the animosities engendered by the campaign will be put aside, and that all our population, regardless of differences, political or otherwise, will now get together in the inspiring work of developing this splendid community. We have the best town and the best county on the map—let's prove ourselves worthy of it by devoting our best efforts to its upbuilding.

THE YANKEE NAVY.

The recent naval display in the Hudson river, showing the wonderful fighting craft of this country was dazzling to the eyes of the spectators and astounding to the rest of the country.

Ninety-nine war vessels, including 24 first-class battleships, were in line for review by the president and the secretary of the navy. It was the greatest war fleet ever brought together in this country, and one of the greatest ever seen anywhere—a thrilling pride-provoking sight for every American.

According to the president, the display has "an education value in arousing patriotism, in illustrating the ability of the naval forces to mobilize on short notice, and in showing the skill of the officers."

Unquestionably it did all this—a beneficial effect, and one not to be made light of or scorned by any means.

The United States is already the second naval power in the world, surpassing Germany by a very narrow margin for that place and is within hailing distance of the top place, held by Great Britain. Its navy is composed of 262 fighting and auxiliary craft, and is manned by 31,294 men and officers.

Two first class battleships a year until the completion of the Panama canal, which will theoretically double both the defensive and offensive effectiveness of the navy, is the government's present plan, as announced by President Taft. Thereafter, one first-class battleship is to be built every year, to keep our fighting strength abreast of the times.

The display, however, will have another effect. It will cause the nation to realize the immense amount of money that is tied up in these splendid fighting machines—money drawn from productive uses and applied to uses that can never be productive of anything but expense and finally resulting in total loss.

Taking the largest view of it, it is silly to spend money, but it is necessary as long as the nations continue to vie with each other in armaments.

In helping the people, not only of this nation, but of all other nations, to come to a realization of the uselessness of such expenditure, the Hudson naval display will hasten the day of general disarmament and world peace.

NOT YET.

Only a small proportion of the total vote of the state has yet been reported. That vote was cast in cities and towns on or near railroads and in easy communication with news centers. For the most part it was expected in advance to give majorities for the Democratic ticket, and it can truthfully be said that outside of Bernalillo county the returns now in do not show any substantial falling off of the anticipated Republican strength.

It is well to bear in mind that a large majority of the voting population of New Mexico live in communities remote from railroads and telegraph lines; that this vote is heavily Republican and that authentic returns have been received from practically none of the precincts where it was cast.

Therefore it would be entirely premature to concede the election of Mr. McDonald as governor, and those newspapers which are sending out extravagant claims of big majorities are fully deceiving the people who rely upon them for information. It is not too much to say that Mr. Bursam is not only undefeated as yet, but there is a very strong probability that he is elected by a substantial majority.

Remember, please, that three years ago the Journal-Democrat claimed the election of Laramie as delegate in congress by 2,500 majority a full week after his opponent had been elected.

STICK A PIN RIGHT HERE.

The Evening Herald is just as much a Republican newspaper today as it was yesterday, the day before, and the day before that. It is devoted to the advancement of Republican principles, which can not die because they are essential to the safety of the republic. Those principles may suffer temporary reverses, but they are certain to triumph in the end as the country is to live and prosper.

Being a Republican newspaper and devoted to Republican principles, the Herald is not unduly downcast over what may seem to be severe reverses in the defeat of the candidates it has supported. A newspaper devoted to principle need never be a hard loser, for there is always the comforting reflection that principle is sure to win eventually and that the day of defeat will only make more sweet the day of final victory.

Anyhow it is much easier to lose gracefully than to win gracefully. A man or a newspaper that has made a brave fight for conviction is always consoled in the hour of defeat by the consciousness that everything possible has been done in a cause believed to be right, and can look with calmness and satisfaction at the result, even though it be adverse. But rare is the winner who is unduly inflated with a sense of his own importance and who can resist the temptation to perform that most contemptible of all acts—taunt his defeated antagonist.

Long after the pack that is now yapping gleefully at its heels have been cast into the discard of oblivion the Herald will be doing business at the same stand, preaching Republican doctrine, and cheering Republican candidates to victory.

DR. ELLIOT ON FOOTBALL.

As a scholar and a leader of public thought Dr. Charles W. Elliot occupies a high place in the public esteem, but as an opponent of football and similar sports he is not likely to get very far in the approval of the American people.

Football is brutal, says Dr. Elliot. Suppose it is—what athletic pastime worth the name was ever invented that was without its element of hazard to life and limb? The few spectacular casualties that occur on the gridiron, and which are always "played up" in the most sensational manner by the newspapers, are as nothing to the thousands who lose their lives every year in hunting, automobile and numerous other sports which might be mentioned.

Football is altogether different from basketball. It is a lusty sport for lusty young men. It is in many respects more typical of the intense energy and activity of American life than any other sport, and that in large measure accounts for its great popularity with growing young American citizens. That it has been abused will not be denied, but what institution known to man has not and its abuses. To the credit of football it is said that it has been kept clean and that those in charge of its activities have constantly worked and are still working to bring it to as near perfection as human imperfection will allow.

Dr. Elliot will receive far more respectful attention from the American people as an authority on what should go on five feet of book shelf than as an authority on what should be done with six feet of brawn and muscle.

The approved method of punishing offenders in Los Angeles now is to sentence them to a life term on the McNamara jury.

What's the matter with turning in now and making Albuquerque the biggest as well as the best town between the two seas?

New Mexico first, last and all the time, is a very good motto for every citizen to adopt as a permanent campaign slogan.

Those Chinese revolutionists continue to carry the country precincts. They may have a peek-in yet.

Francisco I. Madero is at last president of Mexico. He will now begin to learn how popular he isn't.

Pull off the buttons, take down the banners, quit your knocking and get busy building up your state and town.

The Turks and Italians ought to be taken hint from the slant-eyed celestial and get up a sure-enough war.

In the early election returns the weather man was the only one that gave us the correct dope.

Virginia went Democratic, and Congressmen Flood is vindicated.

Well, there's one thing certain, if the voters can stand it, we can.

As a predictor the weather man has them all skinned.

KIRK BRYAN IS ILL AT YALE UNIVERSITY

Word Received This Morning by H. W. D. Bryan Through Lawrence Lee Tells That Albuquerque Young Man Is Down With Typhoid.

Word was received this morning by H. W. D. Bryan of this city through a telegram sent by Lawrence Lee that his son Kirk Bryan, a student at Yale University, is ill with a well developed attack of typhoid fever. Aside from these meager words Mr. Bryan knows nothing of the boy's condition. He stated, however, that Kirk had probably contracted the disease while in Virginia, where he spent the summer's vacation.

A letter received from Hugh Bryan, Rhodes scholar at Oxford, England, says that he is doing well. Hugh has been active in athletics since going to England, having organized an all-American baseball team which defeated all comers. He mentions the arrival in England of Karl G. Karsten, who is the latest student to go to Oxford from the University, having sailed for England on the third of October. Karsten is delighted with the prospects there.

BUILDINGS BEGUN FOR EXPOSITION

Administration Hall of Panama-California Exposition in San Diego Is Well Under Way; In Mission Renaissance Style.

Washington, Nov. 8.—Actual work has begun on the buildings for the Panama-California International exposition at San Diego, in 1915.

According to schedule, say advices from San Diego, workmen began construction Monday morning, Nov. 6th, on the administration building, plans for which, as submitted by Director of Works F. P. Allen, were formally accepted by the directors. Following this action, the committee on buildings and grounds recommended that executive board order work to proceed on the building without delay.

Like all the other buildings to be erected for the exposition, this will be in the mission renaissance style. It will be situated on the left side of the axis of the ground plan, and at the east end of the bridge, near the California State building. There it will form a strong feature of the architectural composition at the entrance to the grounds. In it will be located all of the offices of the exposition and of the division of works, which are now located in a business building in San Diego. The administration building will be ready, the director of works says, by April 1st.

When Col. D. C. Collier, director-general of the Panama-California exposition, was last in Washington, he made arrangements for the installation of a permanent exhibit advertising the exposition, San Diego and Southern California to be installed in the exhibit hall in the new Southern Commercial congress, an organization which is giving San Diego valuable assistance in promoting the exposition.

A competent stage carpenter and scenic artist is now engaged in building the booth for San Diego. This will be designed in the mission style, and will form a picturesque feature in the great exhibit hall. It will emphasize some of the well known and distinctive features of the old mission, and the interior will show a bit of Southern California scenery such as has made that region famous in song and story. The booth will be supplied with a characteristic exhibit forwarded from California and also with literature telling about the exposition; also with photographic views which will give an excellent idea of the country and of the exposition as it will appear. All of the Southern states will have exhibits in this hall, and the visitors who will be attracted to it annually will number thousands.

Rare Cacti. Indications multiply that the exhibit of flora at the San Diego exposition in 1915 will be one of the most unique, beautiful and interesting that has ever been seen. Director-General Collier regards this as one of the strong features of the exposition, also with photographic views which will give an excellent idea of the country and of the exposition as it will appear. All of the Southern states will have exhibits in this hall, and the visitors who will be attracted to it annually will number thousands.

Triumphs of the Air. At the completion of the conquest of the air, there will be little left to be done by the hand of the holding of the Panama-California International exposition in 1915. San Diego then will offer to the world, if the plans of Director-General Collier are carried out, a complete exemplification of the art of aviation from its inception. Colonel Collier is himself an enthusiast on this subject, a member of the San Diego Aero club, and one of the chief promoters of the sport.

He has a firm ally in Glenn H. Curtiss, who has established his winter aviation school at San Diego. Curtiss has been made commissioner of aviation for the exposition. He will not only superintend the gathering of the most complete collection of aeronautical apparatus ever got together, but he will make a special study of meteorological conditions on the coast, and will do all he can to further the success of the $10,000 flight from Panama to San Diego, scheduled to take place on the opening of the canal.

First Flight of Akron, Scheduled to Fly Over Atlantic Is Disastrous on Account of Insufficient Gas.

Atlantic City, N. J., Nov. 8.—Lack of sufficient gas to keep the big dirigible in the air brought to a sudden end the trial flight today of the airship Akron, which is scheduled to make an attempt to cross the Atlantic ocean from this city some time this month. Akron landed on the meadows of Grassy bay seven miles from here this afternoon and had to be towed to this city. It arrived at the hangar shortly after 3 o'clock tonight. A propeller blade broken and a guy wire snapped were the only parts damaged and these can easily be repaired.

The airship left the hangar at the inlet at the northern end of the city at 10 a. m., and made a spectacular flight along the beach, across the city and over the meadows between this resort and the mainland, at a height of about 200 to 400 feet.

The balloon was up nearly two hours when the cold air began to affect the gas and she failed to show proper buoyancy. Several landings were made and finally when the Akron could not rise again to a sufficient height, assistance was sent for. Federal life savers stationed on the Atlantic City and the Brigantine beaches, went to the rescue and with a number of other launches dragged the airship loose from the meadowy grass and towed her home.

Melvin Vaniman, head of the proposed expedition to Europe, was not quite satisfied with the gas supply when the start was made today, but decided to take a chance to see how the ship would act.

"It was wonderful the way that ship behaved," said Vaniman tonight. "My crew behaved even better."

"The flight was successful and we were sorry when it had to be abandoned because of the lack of gas. We know now that a trip across the Atlantic is a little more trying and longer, but entirely possible."

ROCKEFELLER HAD FRUGAL MEAL

Marshall Who Served John D With Subpoena Couldn't Get to New York Fast Enough When Offered Scant Repast.

New York, Nov. 8.—Marshall Henkel returned to the federal building late this afternoon. He announced with some pride that he had been enjoying the day with his friend John D. Rockefeller, upon whom he had served a subpoena in the steel trust case.

"Mr. Rockefeller asked me to be sure to be there for breakfast," said the marshal, "and I took my munitions man, Crawford, along with me. Crawford is still up there looking over the grounds, and Mr. Rockefeller has placed everything at his disposal. Mr. Rockefeller again asked me to go with him over the place, but I could not stay."

"Mr. Rockefeller was at breakfast when we arrived. I had a fine appetite with me, but when I saw the frugal meal I could not get back to New York fast enough."

"Mr. Rockefeller treated me like a gentleman, and it would not be fair to tell what he had to eat, would it?" "When I handed him the instrument, he said: 'Why I thought that that had been attended to last Saturday.' I said, 'No, Mr. Rockefeller, it had not, for you see this paper'."

Baking Powder Biscuits

Light as a Feather
By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Baking Powder Biscuits made by this recipe are so far ahead of ordinary baking powder biscuits that, if once tried, you will never use any other recipe. Try it the next time you run short of bread. Save this recipe.

K C Baking Powder Biscuits

Three cups flour; 1/2 to 1 cup shortening; 3 level teaspoonsful K C Baking Powder; about 1 cup milk or water; 1 teaspoonful salt.

Sift three times, the flour, salt and baking powder. Work into the flour the shortening, using lard or butter for shortening. Then mix to a very soft dough with the milk. The softer the biscuit enters the oven, the lighter it comes out. Never knead baking powder biscuits; press the dough into shape and bake on a sheet or very shallow pan in a hot oven. In placing biscuits in the pan place well apart, not allowing edges to touch. Small biscuits are better than large ones. Large biscuits do not have the proper amount of time to raise and bake.

SNOWFALL OF WEST IS ESTIMATED

New Work Undertaken By Weather Bureau Is of Inestimable Value to Irrigators in New Mexico Valleys.

Washington, Nov. 8.—During the last two years the weather bureau has made systematic measurements of the amount of snowfall in the mountain regions of the west for the purpose of determining as accurately as possible the amount of water available for agricultural and commercial interests during the ensuing spring and summer seasons. The above statement was made today by Secretary of Agriculture Wilson.

Continuing the secretary said: "In connection with the study of snowfall and its consequent run off, a systematic snow survey was begun in the watershed of Maple Creek, near Springfield, Utah. While the work was of an experimental nature, it is thought that within two years sufficient observations will have been obtained to permit of accurate forecasts of water supply from the winter snowfall. The system can also be extended to other and larger projects, and the work will be limited only by the amount of funds available for the purpose. The report of the preliminary campaign in the Maple Creek watershed has brought many expressions of commendation from farmers and hydraulic engineers."
